Special Despotch to The New York Herald Bureau. Albany, March 20.
With the Legislature just entering the home stretch of the 1921 session, Gov.
Miller's programme is now fully unfolded and the politician is beginning to realize that something new and strange is happening to the Republican organization of the Empire State which is not described in the old fashioned books on how to play the game.

Structive policy for both State and cities which may be expected to stand both on their heads. He will devote months to this problem. The economy programme of 1921 will be only the first step in rehabilitating the machinery of government which had fallen into such a sad condition.

inappening to the Republican organization of the Empire State which is not described in the old fashioned books on how to play the game.

The Governor told the State the Republican voters and his party managers publican voters and his party managers of the statume voters and his party managers of the statument of the state and his was the same old hunks—but campaign pledges. Then the Governor took office and told the Legislature of the state pappoints of literally keeping every promise made in a campaign, are gaping and wondering. Can it be true that the Governor is actually going through to the finish with his policy instead of legislative junk heaps and committee morgues after a reasonable time for public discussion?

The answer to the puzzle is—it is true. The Governor not only is going through with the promises given and contained in the programme pending in the Legislature, but he is going a whole lot further. The half has not yet been passed there is every reason to believe that further revelations await the professionals.

Probably the single act of the Governor's which has passed there is every reason to believe that further revelations await the principle laid down in that policy amounts to the application of a new doctrine in State and municipal government and that the broad principle is to be applied to many situations, dearing with the public service situation. What was not realized until the principle is to be applied to many situations of the state behind strict enforcement of the state
